TELLS OF LIQUIDATION

Committee Seeks Cause of Share Prices Reaching
New Lows.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Saying "we do not have any bear raids," Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange, promised complete cooperation today with the senate's inquiry into the exchange in testimony to the banking committee.

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, brought up the last week rumors of a huge bear raid planned for Saturday, which were understood at the capitol to have caused a speeding up of the investigation.

Whitney Denies Raid
Whitney told him he knew nothing of any such raid except something he had been told by Senator Walcott, Republican of Connecticut, about operations in United States Steel.

The exchange president mentioned the stocks of American Telephone & Telegraph, Public Service of New Jersey and Consolidated Gas of New York, as among those referred to in connection with the purported bear raids.

He said there had been "no bear raiding," but "great liquidation" in these stocks.

Whitney said he had data showing the complete short position on the stock exchange up to April 5, and said this already had been made public.

The committee has asked the record of the short position on the exchange at the close of Friday's business, when stock prices reached new lows.

Senator Coughlin, Republican of Michigan, inquired if Whitney thought that represented all the short selling in that period.

"I am confident it is so, so far as our members are concerned," he replied.

Press Gets Data
Whitney said the short selling data had been given to the press "to show the public that the exaggerations in regard to it were purely ridiculous."

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, asked about reports "of continued on Page Two

FIRE DAMAGES CAMP OF SALVATION ARMY

Recreation Hall and Four Cottages Destroyed;
Loss $10,000.

The recreation hall and four cottages at the Salvation Army camp at Greenwood lake, northeast of Marion, were destroyed by fire at 7:30 a. m. today, with a loss estimated to be more than $10,000, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The origin of the fire is not known. Trucks from the Delaware fire department which responded to the call, experienced difficulty in reaching the buildings on account of the mud caused from the heavy rains.

A number of Marion children together with hundreds of other underprivileged children from all over the state, are sent annually on an outing to the camp through the local Salvation Army corps. Captain John Hunter, head of the Marion army, came to Marion last fall from the Delaware camp where he served as recreational director. The camping periods open early in June.

HOOVER CONFERS ON PLANS FOR ECONOMY

President, House Committee
Seek To Adjust Differences
To Save $200,000,000.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Under the dome of the capitol a small group today sought adjustment of conflicting views to make possible the writing of a "national economy program" in one or more bills which by changes throughout the government structure, would save the taxpayers at least $200,000,000 this year.

In an continuance of the 14-day session with President Hoover at the White House, the special economy committee of the house under Representative McDuffie, Democrat of Alabama, met with Director Roop of the budget. Out of their analysis was to come a decision whether to stick to their own plan for a wage and salary rat cut in the federal payroll, or to accept President Hoover's plan for reducing the working time, and thus the pay, of the federal workers, with flat cuts only for the highest officials.

This was the outstanding point of difference in the tentative budget-balancing program worked out by the legislators and the President. Chairman McDuffie voiced personal dislike of some of the other provisions but called for acceptance of individual ideas by all members in the interest of achieving national financial stability.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Evening Star said today that all negotiations for return of the Lindbergh baby leading up to a "tragic trick" by the kidnappers on April 2 centered about Dr. John F. Condon, elderly Fordham university professor, and that an amazing story could now be revealed because Col. Lindbergh himself "has spoken."

Dr. Condon, The Star's account said, was the "Jafie," of a series of 13 advertisements through which Lindbergh communicated with the abductors of his son.

Lindbergh obtained a complete set of the child's fingerprints from toys and furniture in the nursery and demanded a set from the kidnappers, but this was refused, the story added.

Held to Original Amount
At one time, it went on, the abductor expressed dissatisfaction with publicly regarding the case and demanded $70,000 instead of $50,000, but Colonel, through Dr. Condon, was able to reduce this to the original sum.

The ransom note, the story continued, threatened death to the child if the police were called in. The first contact with the kidnappers' negotiators was said to have been established by Dr. Condon and Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's attorney, on March 16, in an obscure spot on the shore of Long Island sound.

Lindbergh's first proposal that the money be left in a certain place and the baby returned several days later to permit the abductors to escape. As stated in one of the "Jafie" advertisements, he wanted it to be a "C.O.D." transaction.

Another meeting took place March 24 in the ghostly surroundings of a cemetery and the next day "Jafie" mentioned receipt of a "check," "accepted as the real article," and apparently containing some article by which to identify the baby.

"The final agreement was that the money would be paid by Col. Breckinridge, that eight hours would elapse without word from the gang, and then a message would be sent revealing the child's whereabouts."

Late on the night of April 1, Lindbergh, Breckinridge, and a third man believed to have been John Fogarty, private detective, left in Lindbergh's car, carrying two black suitcases and heavy wraps. The money presumably was in the bags. Just where they went is not known, the story related but it is said the money is believed to have been turned over to a representative of the kidnappers on the following morning. "Yes, everything O.K." appeared and was taken to mean the money had been paid.

The promised message came saying the baby could be found on a box off Cape Cod April 3 and 4, Lindbergh, Breckinridge, and a third man were seen flying in the vicinity of Martha's Vineyard. They were looking for a yacht named Rally or Nellie, but they did not find it.

Tuesday slipped by with no word, and last Wednesday the climax was reached. Lindbergh's anguish, the story said, was voiced in the advertisement: "What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please better directions."

At the same time it was learned from an authoritative source that Col. Lindbergh has received at least seven notes from the kidnappers other than the original ransom note which was left in the nursery and which demanded $50,000. The notes, the source said, were sent first to Col. Henry Breckinridge, counsel for Col. Lindbergh, in New York. They bore the markings of the original.

The second note, it was asserted, raised the ransom to $70,000 and the subsequent communications contained no other demands. It was stated later that the kidnappers specified the ransom would be raised to $70,000 unless it was paid before April 8.

The date on which the ransom was paid was given as April 2.

ILLINOIS NEARS END OF BITTER CAMPAIGN

Tuesday Primary More Important to State Than to National Political Situation.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, April 11.—Illinois will settle many of its own bitter political feuds in a primary election tomorrow, contributing little to the outcome of national disputes.

Delegates to the national conventions will be elected most of them without having indicated whom they would support for the presidential nomination.

In Chicago authorities prepared to guard against violence arresting more than 100 hoodlums as a precautionary measure.

United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois is the sole entry on the Democratic side and is almost sure to be the favorite son candidate of Illinois.

Former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland is the only Republican entered in the preference vote and he has no slate of delegates in the field.

Hoover Favored
Most of these factions, particularly in the territory outside of Chicago, are considered favorable to the re-nomination of President Hoover.

Although the state has taken national politics lightly thus far, it has been considerably worked up over the hot contests waged in both parties for the nomination of governor. In fact, the state has been so worked up that the state committee picking the candidates. This year's three-cornered battle is expected to bring out a record vote.

Judge Henry Horner of Chicago was selected by the Democratic state central committee. Michael L. Igoe, another Chicagoan, charged Judge Horner was "hand-picked." Bruce Campbell is the third principal entry.

Gov. Louis Emmerson chose not to seek re-nomination on the Republican ticket and backed Omer N. Custer, banker and publisher. Len Small of Kanakake who was governor for eight years, entered again with former Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago one of his backers. Oscar E. Carlstrom, attorney general of the state for eight years and a veteran of two wars; Edward J. Brundage of Chicago, former attorney general and bitter foe of Small; and William

Gibson Advocates Abolition of Tanks, Heavy Mobile Guns and Gas.

By The Associated Press
GENEVA, April 11.—Abolition of tanks, of heavy mobile artillery and also of gas was advocated today by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson in an address to the disarmament conference.

Gibson said, "With the abolition of tanks and heavy mobile artillery, every one of us will be able to cut our budget appreciably. Those two items constitute the greatest single items of expense in connection with modern armies."

"It seems inconceivable to us that with the insistent demand for economy throughout the world we should fail to reach agreement to discard the most costly of our arms."

"In other words it seems incredible that the nations of the world could refuse to enter into an agreement that would at the same time increase defense and decrease expense and that is the purpose of my proposal."

"To illustrate the drain which these weapons cause to the budgets of the world I need only state that the largest type of heavy mobile gun, without its mounting, costs approximately $450,000 and that its life is not long."

"With respect to tanks the large armed type cost in the neighborhood of $45,000 each and their life is even shorter than that of the heavy guns, and their number naturally far greater."

Safes in two business places at Prospect were looted while a strong box in a Marysville filling station was blown open. A filling station attendant, between Prospect and Gallon was held up and robbed by two gunmen. Three business places at Radnor were burglarized.

The men and Patrolman Jenkins gave chase. After an exchange of shots, Zeigler gave up about a block from the scene of the attempted robbery. Two other men in the office and another in a waiting car escaped. Zeigler refused to disclose their names.

$20 in Cash Taken from Safes in Lumber Plant and Mill Offices.

Unlocked safes in the offices of two Prospect business places yielded approximately $20 to burglars Saturday night.

The burglars took $10 from the safe of the Prospect Lumber Co. after forcing entrance to the office. The safe was blown open to give the burglars access to the money.

A safe in the office of the Union Mills was burglarized of a small amount of change, probably not more than $2. Here the burglars forced entrance through the door. After prying open the lock box in the safe, the burglars scattered the company's records over the office in a search for more loot. Nothing else was taken.

Sheriff C. C. Eyer and deputies investigated both burglaries. Tracks near the buildings indicated that two men had broken in both places.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, April 11.—Ohio's delegation to the Democratic national convention will vote at least four times for Governor George White as a candidate for the presidency, and then will switch to either James M. Cox, or Newton D. Baker, unless the White candidacy receives added support.

This was the plan explained today by the governor, to whom the delegation's votes are pledged. He was here to attend tonight's banquet of the Ohio society.

Neither Cox nor Baker has announced publicly a willingness to be a presidential candidate.

Hitler, Buried Under Vote
Avalanche, Continues To Show Fight.

ISSUES BATTLE CALL

German President, 84, Scores
Reelection Victory by Huge Majority.

By The Associated Press
BERLIN, April 11.—Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, second president of the German republic, settled back in his presidential chair today at 84, for another term of seven years.

In yesterday's run off election he rolled up a plurality of nearly 6,000,000 votes over Adolf Hitler, National Socialist candidate, his chief opponent.

The vote, announced early today, was: Von Hindenburg, 19,359,642; Hitler, 12,417,460; Thaelmann (Communist), 3,706,588; Invalid, 8,204; total, 36,491,694.

Has Large Majority
The winner, will have the satisfaction of knowing he is a majority president. Although he failed to get a majority in the first election March 13, he rolled up a majority of 2,235,784 yesterday over the combined vote of his two opponents.

One National Socialist and one Republican were killed during fights in Hamburg and Bremen. Another man dropped dead from excitement. Three score persons were injured and hundreds arrested.

Early this morning Hitler called on his followers to grid for the Prussian diet elections on April 24 in an effort to march a step farther toward the goal he called "German liberation." "The National Socialists know not what rest is," he said.

That the Hitler movement apparently came to a standstill yesterday would seem to be indicated by the fact that, although his increase from 81.1 per cent of the vote on March 13 to 26.6 per cent yesterday was substantial, yet the difference did not equal the vote cast for Lieut. Col. Theodore Duestenberg, Nationalist candidate in the March election, who withdrew from the run-off.

In the Clouds

(With Rogers Special)

SANTA MONICA, Calif., April 11.—Didn't you see a headline in Sunday morning's paper saying that "Russia is going to extract the snow from the clouds before the clouds reach Moscow, thereby relieving the city of having snow?"

Now that sounds silly, don't it?

We all say "Those darn Russians, they always got some crazy ideas." Then in the next column it says "Hoover and a congressional committee propose to take two hundred million dollars from government expenditure."

Well, I'll bet you the Russians get the snow out of the clouds before Hoover and Congress gets any government employees out of their swivel chairs, but both things sound good in print.

NEBRASKA PRIMARY REGARDED AS TEST

By The Associated Press
LINCOLN, Neb., April 11.—The relative strength of Speaker John C. Raker of Texas, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma as presidential candidates will be tested in the Nebraska primary tomorrow.

Their names appear on the Democratic preferential ballot by which the voters impose on the delegates to the Democratic national convention "a moral obligation" to support the leading candidate.

This has not always served to hand the delegates in the past. Two of the delegates have been fined by the Democratic party for being pledged to any candidate. On the Republican ballot, only the names of former United States Senator Joseph R. Francis of Maryland appears. President Hoover did not file.

N. Y. EXCHANGE HEAD DENIES BEAR RAIDS

Whitney Promises Cooperation

Inquiry.

An attempt to make a bear raid last Saturday that would make "the day a black Saturday," Whitney said.

"I have no knowledge of a bear raid except some statements made to me by Senator Walcott last Friday regarding some operations in United States stock," Whitney replied. "We do not have any bear raids."

Whitney's appearance marked the opening of the long delayed senate investigation of the nation's principal security markets, an inquiry inspired by President Hoover himself out of a conviction that the country's economic recovery has been retarded by systematic and purely selfish dealing down of the stock and bond prices by pools of big operators.

President Senator Walcott, Republican of Connecticut, who sponsored the investigation, and others have shown a belief that uncovering the source of the depressing activities may put a halt to this type of activity where all the administration urging for internal regulation by the stock market itself had failed.

KIDNAPED PHYSICIAN HOME; GONE 2 DAYS

Chicagoan Abducted by Mistake; Gangsters Were Looking for Bootlegger.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, April 11.—Object of a wide police hunt for two days, Dr. A. E. Biddle, prominent north shore physician, was safely home today and told the authorities he had been kidnapped by five alleged gangsters who apparently believed him to be a bootlegger marked for assassination.

Dr. Biddle came back home last night after having been missing since early Saturday morning when he left his home in north Chicago to attend four persons injured in an automobile accident. A telephone call summoned him there.

After treating the injured, he told the police, he was returning home when a large sedan forced his car to the curb and five armed men compelled him to accompany them to what he believed was the suburban village of Cicero, on the western fringe of Chicago.

There, he said, his abductors removed a bandage from his eyes and exclaimed: "You're not the man we wanted. We were looking for a bootlegger." They kept him in a liquor warehouse, he said, and set him free.

TO HEAR EVIDENCE IN HONOLULU TRIAL

Prosecution Summons 29 Persons To Tell Story of
"Honor Slaying."

By The Associated Press
HONOLULU, April 11.—One side of the prosecution's story of the killing of a Hawaiian accused of attacking a white woman was today to be told in court today as the Honolulu-Masque "honor slaying" trial moved into its second stage.

Selection of a jury having been completed, the prosecution assembled witnesses for the presentation of evidence.

As the trial resumed after recessing over Saturday and Sunday, Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley had before him the names of 29 persons who professed to have knowledge of one phase or another of the killing of Joseph Kahahawai, Hawaiian accused with four other men of attacking Mrs. Thalia Masie.

With the pidgin English they speak in court, since most of the prosecution's witnesses are Oriental and mixed blood, Kelley hopes to force a chain of circumstantial evidence which will send Mrs. Masie's husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Masie, her mother, Mrs. Granville R. Fortescue, and two navy enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, to prison as the killers.

The death penalty is not involved, the defendants being accused of second degree murder.

The case is being tried before what is termed the "whitest jury" ever called in Hawaii. Six men of American extraction and one of German, was seated in the face of the prosecution's fight, to have a jury of Oriental and mixed blood.

The morning bulletin today from the New Jersey state police reiterated the previous assertion that only the real kidnappers could have furnished the identification on which the ransom was paid. This was in answer to a query raising the possibility that some intermediary might have unwittingly passed the identification mark on to persons who had nothing to do with the kidnapping.

Report No New Contacts Made

The bulletin said also that no further contacts with the kidnapers had been established and that there was "no foundation" for the report that Col. Lindbergh had offered to replace the currency he paid with gold.

The police were still looking for Harry Fleischer, purple gang, and Abe Wagner, and the bulletin said that police departments in other states were following their movements.

MOOT POINTS CLEARED UP

Col. Lindbergh, in another of the rare statements he has authorized since the child was stolen from the Soudan hills estate March 1, made several moot points clear last night.

He disclosed definitely that there was an original ransom note, and that this note was such as to provide an absolute means of identifying the kidnappers.

He made clear that the parties to whom he paid $50,000 in five ten and twenty dollar banknotes early this month had convinced him that they were bona fide representatives of the kidnappers, if not the kidnappers themselves.

He went further and reiterated his hope that the kidnappers would make good their promise. It was even reported that Col. Lindbergh was willing to consider replacing the currency—the serial numbers of which now are in the hands of all banks in the country—with gold coin, which carry no identification numbers.

Col. Lindbergh's statement last night said:

"At the time the baby was kidnapped, a ransom note for $50,000 was left in the nursery. For obvious reasons, it was necessary to withhold information concerning the ransom note."

"A man was offered in the ransom note of positive identification of the kidnappers thereafter. Subsequent notes received were identified by this means and at the time the ransom was paid over the kidnappers used the same means to positively identify themselves as the ones who had carried off the baby."

"This is the only means by which Colonel Lindbergh can know for a fact that he is dealing with the kidnappers. It has been withheld and will be withheld by Colonel Lindbergh for future identification."

"It must be remembered that the baby has not been returned and it has been and still is the policy of the state police authorities that the primary motive is to accomplish the same return of the baby and all efforts are and will be bent in this direction."

"Jafsie," whose signature has been appended to several advertisements since the kidnapping 41 days ago, has been revealed as Dr. F. F. Condon, Sr., 72-year-old welfare worker and teacher.

Condon, who passed the signature "Jafsie," because it sounds like his initials, J. F. C., was reported today as discouraged at the failure of the kidnappers to return the child. He indicated that the spot designated for the return was off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., and he pointed out that the waters there were alive with coast guard and rum running boats at the time set for the return. He was not surprised, he said, that the kidnappers declined to risk being caught.

Norfolk Trio "Amazed"

The three Norfolk, Va., "intermediaries" who have believed themselves in contact with the kidnappers said they were "amazed" at the turn developments had taken. They said they had no knowledge in advance that the colonel was negotiating with the men to whom the ransom was paid.

The New York Daily News, the Chicago Tribune and the Detroit Mirror, allied newspapers, offered $50,000 today for "exclusive information" which will enable any of the three newspapers to restore the baby to its parents.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, announced that "a noted character" was taken into custody and was being questioned. In a statement he said:

"Early in the investigation, a noted character was reported to me as not having been seen since the kidnapping. An informant definitely connected him with the crime, and this is one of the lines of investigation referred to in earlier bulletins."

According to the News today, Condon, through the "Jafsie" ads, contacted a representative of the kidnapers. This representative told him, Condon said, that if the $50,000 ransom were not paid by April 8, the price would be raised to $70,000. The kidnapers' agent added:

"Tell Lindbergh we can hold out just as long as he can."

RED CROSS RECORD OF SERVICE PRAISED

Far-Flung Activities Described at Opening of Annual Convention.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 11.—How the Red Cross responded to the needs of drouth, storm, tornado and unemployment emergencies during the last year was told today by James L. Fieser, vice chairman.

Addressing the opening session of the annual convention of the national Red Cross, Fieser sketched a far-flung picture of the organization's far-flung activities and paid high tribute to its chairman, John Barton Payne, for his "unselfish and courageous service."

The Red Cross has been designated by congress to distribute to the needy flour made from 40,000,000 bushels of government wheat. Fieser said more than one-third of this amount is now in the process of being distributed.

Rabbi William R. Rosenblum of Temple Israel, New York, warned that congress must forget "sectional pride, petty partisan politics and personal ambition" and enact measures "striking at the fundamental causes of economic unrest and material inability."

"Otherwise," he said, "the masses here will rise in their might and demand a hunger loan more gigantic in scope than any of the victory loans which were over-subscribed so generously during the World war." The convention, attended by about 1,000 delegates, will continue through Thursday.

Work Praised by Hoover

President Hoover praised members of the Red Cross in the name of the American people for what he termed a daily demonstration of a fine sense of devotion.

The President stood in Continental hall here before the annual convention of the Red Cross and declared it would be "a neglect of duty" if he did not join in the opening of its meeting. He is president of the organization.

Mr. Hoover walked from the White House through misty weather for several blocks to the meeting. His decision to address it was unexpected and was not announced until just before he left the executive mansion.

Filkowski was captured several weeks ago in New York by Cleveland detectives.

More than $40,000 worth of stolen jewelry was found in the New York apartment occupied by Filkowski and his sweetheart, Mrs. Mary Kikic of Cleveland. A small arsenal also was found in the place.

Candidate Has No Opposition

R. G. SMALLWOOD

This is the fourth of a series of stories about candidates whose names will be voted on in the May 10 primaries.

Although he is a candidate for re-election, campaign expenses and political speeches will be no concern to R. G. Smallwood, county treasurer, this year.

Smallwood, a Democrat, is unopposed both at the primary and at the general election. He is the only candidate without opposition.

He is 48, lives at 366 Bellefontaine avenue, is married and is the father of three children. Last year he resigned as city councilman-at-large to take office as treasurer.

His "campaign" promises are for the same strict plan of economy that enabled me to reduce the running expenses of this office 22% per cent during the first six months of my first term.

CLEVELANDERS ACT TO SAVE COLLEGE

By International News Service
CLEVELAND, April 11—Eighty men and women of Cleveland have pledged themselves to see the whoever wants an education shall not be denied.

These persons' members of the Adult Education association, are leading a movement to save Cleveland college, which is now faced with a huge operating deficit.

Leaders of the move are Newton
D. Baker, prominent Cleveland lawyer; Dr. Robert E. Vinson, president of Western Reserve university; and Dr. Caswell Ellis, director of Cleveland college.

Effort are being made to raise $100,000 to keep the college in operation until June 1933. A gift of $50,000 is a pledge from the Carnegie Foundation and $25,000 has been promised from another source, if the local fund is realized.

IGNORANT OF LAW SCORED POINT HERE

By International News Service
JEFFERSON, O., April 11—Law is law, whether it be in Greece, America or Ashtabula county, and Probate Judge J. Philip Perry doesn't care about making any exceptions.

But laws should be too cruel, and when they might cause a lot of disappointment, well—

Bedecked in their wedding finery,
James C. Bunczkowski and Mary Lukowski of Conneaut appeared at Judge Perry's office seeking a marriage license. They pleaded ignorance of the law and told the judge guests had been invited to their wedding reception that very day. Since the five day law went into effect, Judge Perry has held to it to the letter, but consented to make his first exception and granted the license.

The operetta will be given this year instead of the annual home

the Agosta High school, the class of 1929 and Harding High school, 1930, and was a member of the Glee club and orchestras of both

WHO PROPOSED? DIVORCE SUIT ISSUE

By International News Service
DOVER, O., April 11—Charging his wife proposed to him and forced him to accept, Charles Botimer of Uhrichsville has filed suit for divorce.

His wife, Laura, indignantly denied that she popped the ques-

One-Room Schools Gone.

By International News Service
CIRCLEVILLE, O., April 11—
Pickaway county's last one-room school house has been abandoned following action of Monroe township board of education. The school is located in Monroe township, 11 miles west of Circleville, and for a number of years has housed 30 pupils. Economy and an effort to promote better education were given as reasons for abolishing the school. Pupils will attend the township central school at Monroe.

SAFETY CONGRESS PROGRAM READY

Ohio Industries To Be Represented at Columbus Meeting.

By International News Service
COLUMBUS, O., April 11—Pushing forward in their campaign to reduce industrial deaths and accidents, representatives of leading manufacturers will come here
April 19-21 for the fifth All Ohio Safety congress.

Officials believe safety methods are needed now more than any time before because of existing economic conditions.

The perpetuation of industrial safety "is important at this time when diminished returns from industrial effort call for the practice of unusual economies," according to a letter of invitation sent out by Wellington T. Leonard, chairman of the state industrial commission.

"Accidents," he said, "are one of the greatest forms of economic waste and their prevention is an economic necessity."

Despite economic conditions, industrial safety interest has increased in Ohio during the past year," Leonard said, pointing to the remarkable improvement of plant records.

Three Ohio State university professors are on the program. They are H. E. Nold, mine engineering; John Younger, industrial engineering; and F. C. Caldwell, electrical engineering.

HORSEMEN FIGHT FAIR RACE CHANGE

By International News Service
CHIRCHSVILLE, O., April 11—
Plans of the Thurston county fair board to replace horse racing with automobile and motorcycle racing has started a hot fight here with horsemen as the aggressors.
Ordered to vacate quarters they have occupied for years at the fairgrounds, horsemen became indignant. The board's plan to destroy the horse track to make way for a motorcycle and automobile race course was roundly thundered.

The fight has become so heated that there is now some doubt as to whether the first motor races can be held as scheduled on Memorial day.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, April 12

THE astral influences bearing rule on the affairs of this day promise much activity in business and in the launching of new projects. Also all pertaining to writings, publication, promotion and intellectual pursuits should prosper. But all may be offset or complicated by an inclination to strife, contention or rash, impulsive and hasty action. Shun speculation, litigation and personal dangers or fire.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of splendid opportunity in business and in new undertakings.
Particularly fortunate should be all writers, publishers, promoters, or literary pursuits,
but be careful to avoid quarrels, violence, tumult and hasty and ungoverned actions, lest defeat, personal danger and unhappiness accrue. Be on guard against accident and fire. A child born on this day should be versatile and intellectual, affectionate and fond of the domestic circle, but it may be disposed to be rash, fool-hardy, impetuous and headstrong. It should be disciplined in early infancy, lest these and carelessness lead to personal harm or accident.

WOULD BOOST LEVY ON LARGE INCOMES
Farm Bureau Proposes 65 Per Cent Tax Above Five Millions.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 11—A sur- tax of 65 per cent on incomes of more than $5,000,000 was recom- mended today to the senate finance committee by the American Farm Bureau federation through Chester Gray, its Washington representa- tive.

He proposed also a tax on the income from tax exempt securities. This suggestion promptly drew criticism from Chairman Smoot and Senators Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, and Ringham, Re- publican of Connecticut.

Reed said it would be breaking faith to issue tax exempt bonds and then tax the income from them.

Gray replied that the action could be justified only by the necessity of balancing the budget. He contended it would tend to pre- vent great wealth from being into tax exempt securities to escape the increased surtaxes.

Do you always GET WHAT YOU ASK FOR when you shop?

When you shop, do you always get your favorite packaged products—the ones you ask for?

Or do you sometimes yield to the persuasion of insistent clerks and let them sell you, instead, other products which they claim are "just as good?"

If you have ever purchased these "just as good" brands, you know how frequently such unfamiliar brands disappoint you. Compare the brands you know and for, these others often are not the money's worth which you are every right to expect.

Why, then, do you let them urge you to buy these inferior products? Is only one word the answer? Protection?

continually urging you to buy strange products in place of the dependable brands you ask for, this is generally true. The merchant reaps an extra profit, or his clerk a commission, by switching you to the unknown, often inferior merchandise!

Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practice. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for, with full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend.

But if you are urged to buy something "just as good" as the thing you ask for, refuse it! Insist on products you know by experience, or by reputation. Such products are often sold in this newspaper. Get the name of the product you ask for, and you'll get it.

Daily Proverb—Hypocrisy is a sort of borage that vice pays to virtue.—Rochefoucauld.

In the light of the outcome of the Wisconsin primary election to select delegates to the coming national convention, one might take it that the voters of the state are getting tired of insurgency and radicalism.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith says the report that he is a mere stalking horse in the race to raise Democratic presidential nomination is false; that he is in the race to the finish. Well, it isn't like a man who hasn't gone to the finish and doesn't know what it's like.

The county attorney of Bell county, Kentucky, says that "any one can come into Bell county if they have an earnest desire to help feed out people or to help them. What we object to is the hanging in of a few bottles of milk and a carload of literature and motion picture cameras." Here the reader may get the trouble visiting delegations are encountering down there, put into a nut shell.

Dr. Warren Coleman, of New York, told the members of a senate committee that "there contains almost as much energy value as the heat milk." Maybe so, but it may be just as well for mothers to stick to the milk diet for their babies and not switch to the brew.

Ninety-five widows among the 400 passengers aboard the Empress of Britain, which has returned to New York from a four-month trip around the world, are forever off the "romance at sea" stuff. Not a single "captain" was made by any of them. And it's leap year, too, if that makes any difference in the cases of widows!

The demand for government securities last week was such as to run a number of issues up to new high marks for the year. Have we here a reflection of the possibility that the proposed legislation to "soak the rich" will be enacted into law?

Federal agents raided two vessels which reached New York, one day last week, and seized $300,000 worth of liquor hidden under the coal of one of them and narcotics, valued all the way from $125,240 to $833,000, boxed and labeled "toys," on another. Either the smugglers are getting bolder, or the federal agents are getting cleverer. At the lower estimate of the value of the narcotics, liquor and drugs seized by them last week exceeded $2,000,000 in value.

Economy Is Painful.

Squalls of dissent and shouts of protest are disturbing American placidity from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf. Ejaculations of fear, anger and pained surprise are the signal showing that a nation has discovered economy is painful.

In every municipality struggling with an adverse balance in its budget, in state capitals and in Washington the sugared warning of budget makers that "this won't be painful" is being booed down by the prospective victims. It doesn't matter that it is their party, they aren't going to come to it without protests.

It is being demonstrated, probably with good effect, that the bigger the unit of government is the harder becomes the process of readjustment. Numerous cities and counties have slashed their budgets to the bone, readjustment in that direction being easier than levying new taxes. The only actual progress in the direction of economy, in fact, has been made by small units of government.

State governments, being more decentralized, find it correspondingly more difficult to effect real savings in their operation than local governments. The federal government, despite high-sounding promises made in its behalf, has accomplished practically nothing. It is finding that adjustment of the budget can be made more easily by imposition of the heavier taxes, a fact explained largely by a huge cumulative deficit that must be attacked from both directions.

Secretary of the Treasury Mills has spoken a significant warning against passing tax legislation that will cause an excessive drain upon the nation's working capital. "If you demobilize capital, it is just the same as demobilizing a regiment of men. Demobilize a thousand men and you still have a thousand individuals, but you have destroyed their unit power to act," is his reply to legislators who lean too heavily on the theory of "ability to pay." He is preparing a list of levies designed to cause a minimum disturbance to the foundations of the capitalist system on which this nation depends. His protest, saner than some others, is but one of the many, nevertheless. Americans are painfully learning a lesson in the conduct of fiscal affairs.

Colonel Lindbergh Tricked.

The kidnaping of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh out of $50,000 on a promise to restore to him his son has aroused throughout the country a degree of resentment against the underworld but slightly, if any, less pronounced than that manifested over the kidnaping of the baby. This feeling is not due to the fact that the Lindberghs were done out of their money. It has been evoked by the utter heartlessness of those who worked the flimflam in raising the expectations of the young parents that their little one would soon be with them once more. After the weeks of mental torture they have endured, to have their hopes thus raised only to have them blighted, must have caused Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh a degree of anguish beyond the comprehension of those who have never thus suffered.

There may be a tendency on the part of some to feel that the colonel was "easy" in paying over the money without assurance of regaining possession of his son, that all along he has shown too much confidence in the underworld. Hired a man of honor, he probably couldn't believe that even the kidnapers were lost to every sense of honor, and possibly, too, he was influenced by all the rot which has been printed about "square shooting" gangsters, by all he had been told about their reverence for their word. Then, too, he is a father, with a father's feeling, and he forgot all else, if he ever had a doubt, in the hope of regaining possession of his little boy.

The truth is that there never was and never will be an honest gangster, never a gangster ruled or influenced by the promptings of honor. Honor and honesty preclude the possibility of the gangster life.

It seemingly is assumed that the double-crossing of Colonel Lindbergh was the work of the kidnapers. There is no assurance of that. It may have been, more likely was, the work of criminals who "muscle in." However, should they be apprehended, their punishment should be equally severe with that administered the kidnapers, should the latter be apprehended and convicted. Said to say, however, under our laws there is no punishment for either kidnaping or the crime the film flimflamers have worked on Colonel Lindbergh commensurate with the enormity of their crimes. There is no punishment prescribed by our laws for any crime sufficiently severe for either.

The lower house of congress has approved an allotment of $49,237,795 to the veterans administration for 1933. That hardly is along the line which would justify the impression that Uncle Sam doesn't look after the interest of his former fighting men.

Eight armed men last Saturday raided the office of the Chicago Globe, a community newspaper which has opposed the candidacy of a candidate by charging that he has always in the past had gangster support, locked up the employees in a warehouse, broke up the forms and hauled away all the edition discussing next Tuesday's primary up there. It begins to look as though there is error in the charge that the Chicago underworld is seeking to gain control of the city. It looks as though it already had.

Wind Power.

Men saw the advantage of using wind power when they noticed that a breeze blowing on their broad backs made it easier to propel their rolling cogwheel canoes. So they made sails and achieved things that would have been impossible had they remained dependent on the energy of their muscles.

A sailing ship for commercial purposes is a curiosity these days. Even the windmills that used to pump water for the farmers are giving way to the better controlled power of electricity, gas-oil and steam. But wind power hasn't been forgotten. It won't be, as long as inventive genius lasts.

It has been demonstrated that rotor ships—the windmill principle applied to vessels—are practical. High speed cars to run on rails and driven by propellers have been hailed as a coming means of locomotion. They are dependent on wind resistance.

More spectacular, however, is the plan of a German engineer to harness wind power to use in production of electricity. By means of the highest structure in the world, a 1,200 foot tower he would elevate huge windmills high enough to get into the invariable air currents of the upper atmosphere. The windmills would turn dynamos, producing electric current at the rate of 200,000,000 kilowatt hours annually.

It occurs to prodigal humanity occasionally to wonder what will provide energy when nature's supplies of coal and oil are exhausted. Water power is one answer, but it is not universal. There are still the energy of the atom as found in physical matter, the energy of the sun's rays and the power of the wind, none of them more than tapped as yet. Nature provided well in anticipation of the waste that would occur.

The department of agriculture in Washington has issued warning that a stubborn battle with dreaded insect pests faces the country's farmers this year and the advantage is all with the insects. The department claims that the corn borer, the corn earworm and the Hessian fly have been aided by mild winter, while other insects, ranging from the chinch bug to the vegetable weevil have survived in great numbers and already are doing damage. Put out the guards! The minor patriots must have jobs next summer and fall, regardless of the condition of the federal treasury!

Representative Mass of Minnesota, last week assailed President Hoover, charging that Mr. Hoover has junked the national inland waterway program despite the fact that an immediate $50,000,000 program of river and harbor construction is practicable from an engineering standpoint. If there is much of that kind of talk it will come much closer to assuring the election of Mr. Hoover. In the face of a mighty deficit the less money blown in for river and harbor improvements the chief purpose of which is political fence building, the better the voters of the country will be suited.

"DON'T BALANCE—P.L.L. HAVE TO HAVE YOUR SHIRT, TOO!"

Editorial Opinion.

FEARFUL WASTE.

Every body knows that since the war the expense of government has increased tremendously. Most people realize, too, that some thing must be done to correct conditions immediately, or even this superfluous nation is going to be milked under a load of debt. That has become very clear locally. It is equally clear in Lansing. And there can be no illusion about the situation in Washington.

In four articles published by the Free Press William P. Heilm has provided some special enlightenment regarding the reasons for the trouble so far as the federal establishment is concerned. The picture Mr. Heilm presents is not pleasant. Necessarily it is fragmentary and illustrative, rather than exhaustive. But those who have studied it can not fail to be appalled at the extravagance, mismanagement and irresponsibility it reveals.

The inexcusable and reckless milking of national financial resource unquestionably has amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars in the last few years. We do not think there is any doubt that it runs into the billions in the aggregate. And probably it is responsible for substantially all the current treasury deficit. The waste runs all the way from legal graft by congressmen who collect more money for traveling expenses than they spend to the blood-sucking activities of organized predatory feeders and class privilege, which, working through subservient bureaus and commissions, probably extracts almost enough from the federal resources in the course of a year to run an economically managed government for the same period.

Operating between these two extremes we find congress constantly throwing away large sums in lavishly-conducted inquiries and investigations—some of those authorized by the senate have been no less than scandalous—in inexhaustibly swollen printing bills, and in bureau extensions and multiplications that bear no relation to sense or reason. And so on.

Some of the participants in the orgy undoubtedly have acted in good conscience. They have failed in judgment under the stress of general madness or have allowed themselves to be carried away by enthusiasms, and have urged or countenanced wasteful outlays while laboring under a blissful impression that the financial resources of Washington were limitless and need be conserved no more than the free air.

But waste is just as hard on the taxpayer if it is "honest" waste as it is if feloniously created. Besides that, a very great part of the waste of federal money has been intellectually dishonest to say the least. The people's money has been dissipated in great floods as the result of moral cowardice among legislators, at the call of political expediency, and in some cases, we fear, in response to the urgings of still less worthy motives. There are evidences of cases where the understanding of the difference between "mine and thine" has worn very thin with public officers of considerable prominence, and with great pretense to virtue.

Altogether the federal government, designed to be the servant, aid and protector of the citizen, has become, on the financial side, a despot, a burden and a task-master, whose exactions, enduring and therefore tolerated, when the land was in its flood tide of abnormal post-war affluence, can now no longer be borne, yet they continue to grow more and more oppressive.

The chief of the Forbes magazine said: "The most serious evil besetting this country is neither prohibition nor crime; it is unbearable taxation." To cut that taxation as a physician cuts out a monstrous tumor is the first business of Washington, of state governments, and of municipal officers.—Detroit Free Press.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Thursday, April 11.
Rev. C. A. Pearce arrived in the city and assumed the pastorate of the Central Christian church.
The Star told of the death of Dr. Calvin P. Gabley, former mayor of the city, the day before, at the age of sixty-seven.
Many villages were destroyed and thousands of Indians were killed by the eruption of the volcano, Chiriqui, in Panama.
"Bill" Johnston was selected for playing manager of the local Ohio State team.
Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Stillman H. Doak, of Oak street, and to Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper, of Monroe street.
The Star reported the birth of a son, the day before, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anderson, of Glad street.
The Star reported that the degree team of Marion Lodge, No. 402, Knights of Pythias, had gone to Morral and conferred the knight rank on a class there.
The home of John Parr, of east Clark street was badly damaged by fire.
Miss Mattie E. Leeper and Mr. Clarence M. Peterson were married by Dr. C. R. Havigs.

The Growth of Children.

BY ROYAL S. COPLAND, M. D.

In the growth of a child there will be found a definite relationship between the height and weight.
At birth the average baby measures between nineteen and twenty inches. During the first year the gain is about eight inches, and during the second year from three to five inches.

In spring and summer months the growth is usually more rapid than in winter months. Weak and premature babies are apt to grow in height, while the gain in weight is small and may remain stationary.

The variations in development differ considerably within normal limits. A child below standard requirements, from effects of ill health, improper diet or some constitutional disease, under proper conditions may grow into a robust person.

Dwarfish persons may be perfect in physical structure, with organs well formed but small, but another form of failure to attain proper growth is called infantilism. In this the individual is childish, both in appearance and in mentality. Some such cases have their origin in constitutional diseases, like tuberculosis, while in others there appears to be a disturbance of the ductless glands, the endocrine glands.

One of these, the thyroid gland, is of great importance in normal growth. If there is marked failure in its function the result is a form of mental defect known as cretinism. Cretins are short for their age, childish in mentality and appearance, the head and abdomen are large, the face is puffy and the skin is thick and rubbery. All the mental functions are sluggish and the physical movements are slow.

Where the thyroid ductless gland is slight, usually there is great improvement under the administration of the gland extracts obtained from animals. Not infrequently, indeed, an approximate cure is effected.

Other types of ductless glandular action have been recognized and treated with varying success, but in all cases hygiene and dietetic supervision is required.

In contrast to the small, underdeveloped child is the large, oversized and overweight type. Occasionally this condition may have its origin in overfeeding and lack of exercise, but this cause is comparatively infrequent. Most cases have been proved to be due to some disturbance of function in the endocrine glands.

This type of child is tall and has the appearance of an adult. In boys the voice is sometimes husky and deep and in certain cases the muscles are overdeveloped. The degree of intelligence does not correspond to the size of the body, but varies to the age of the child.

Some disturbance of the secretion of the endocrine glands known as the pituitary glands is at fault in such cases. These glands are found at the base of the brain. Too great a secretion from the anterior portion of the gland causes these peculiar changes in the muscles and bones.

In certain cases such administration of certain extracts from the endocrine glands of animals has resulted in arresting the progress of the disease. Your doctor will tell you about this.

A.—The trouble may be due to strain. Rest and massage should be helpful. If the trouble persists see your doctor for his advice.

Change in London Skyline.

BY W. G. QUISENBERRY

London, April 11.—U.P.—Guide books used to say that you could see Londoners at their best in the theater.
A certain polished gathering of women re-splendidly gowned and men meticulous in evening clothes, people careless in their manner, all bearing the air of the highest society, that is the picture that was the picture of a theater audience.
Alas, they draw it no more. The theater, like everything else, has changed since the war. A Londoner nowadays does not hesitate to dash for the theater in his plus-fours, if he feels so inclined. Those who suffer the boiled shirt for appearance's sake, find themselves in the minority.
Now Londoners are trying to bring back the evening dress habit. Theater owners used to reserve the entire lower floor for their more fashionably garbed patrons, making the man in street clothes sit in the balcony. It lent an air to the place. That was how the London "nobs" got their reputation for amity.
Prominent actors and social satellites think the plan should be adopted again.

Along the Thames embankment, just south of the Strand, a new skyline is taking shape. As if prepared for a mighty onslaught by the barbarians of the South, great castles have appeared between Charing Cross and Blackfriars.
The castles are not so much in the tradition of medieval England as that of the great palace of the merchant princes of the Renaissance. The first, Unilever House, guards the bridge head of Blackfriars. The second is the Cabot and Wireless company building, near that historic spot known as the Temple. The third, a colossal stone structure to be called Shell-Mex House, is being raised on the site of the old Hotel Cecil.
There are no skyscrapers in London to compare with those in New York for height, but the large office buildings are more classic in design and cover a great space.

Women at such places as Brighton have taken to pipe-smoking even in the better circles, as an economy measure.
Two fashionably-dressed women recently were seen puffing on fancy-shaped briars near the beach. The expensive Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes which they usually smoke cost them $4 to $5 a week sometimes, and now they are trying something cheaper.

Ohio Areally Considered.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

While consulting a reference book, what was found was the longest line that could be drawn through Ohio from east to west? And the longest from north to south? The east-and-west measurement is a little longer, 225 miles, while the north-and-south line is but 214. The longest straight line that could be drawn in Ohio would lie between the northeast corner, near Conneaut and the southwest corner, near Cleves, Hamilton county, nearly 300 miles long. The area of Ohio is 40,760 square miles.

Now to compare us with Texas, the largest state in the union. The area of Texas is 267,896 square miles, so that six Ohio's could be made out of Texas, and several counties would be left over. Texas measures from north to south 800 miles and from east to west 750 miles.

But not to leave Ohio readers feeling humiliated by this unfavorable comparison of their state, areally, with Texas, our largest state, let us make some comparisons of Ohio with Rhode Island, our smallest state. "Little Rhode" measures only forty-eight miles from north to south and thirty-six miles from east to west, and her total area is but 1,245 square miles. Rhode Island is, therefore, not much larger than an Ohio county, of which we have eighty-eight. In fact, thirty-two states as large as Rhode Island could be made from the area of Ohio—and there would be a good-sized county left over. The bounds better.

But, comparing Rhode Island's territory with that of Texas, what do we find? That 212 states the size of Rhode Island could be made out of Texas' territory. In fact, many of Texas' counties are larger than all of Rhode Island. There are 171 counties in Texas, some of them very large. There is one congressional district in the state in which there are thirty-eight counties. It is the Sixteenth district, embracing many of the sparsely settled counties of the state.

Dinner Stories.

"You remember what a great man once said about the impossibility of fooling all the people all the time?"
"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "and I feel, in my efforts to remain continuously in office, that I have very much the worst of the situation. My people can fool me any time they get ready."

Fortune Teller: "You seem to be in for a financial reverse."
Client: "Thank heaven! If my finances don't reverse pretty soon I'll starve."

Sir Austen Chamberlain told this one at a recent dinner. A Negro applied for a job and set forth his attributes without too much modesty.

"All right," said the boss, "you can have a job, and as to salary—I'll pay you what-ever you're worth."

"Dat's no use to me, sah," returned the applicant. "Ise gettin' mo' dan dat where I is now."

Wife—"I wish, dear, you'd settle my milliner's bill. I can't sleep for thinking of it."
Hub—"Your conscience pucking you, eh?"
Wife—"Oh, no, but I need another hat right away."

Her Father, sternly: "Young man, do you think you can support my daughter on forty dollars a week?"
Nervy Suitor: "I'm willing to try, sir—that's the best you can do."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTRE

New York, April 11.—Diary of a New Yorker: Came young Will Harris and took a Seayham for a gay holiday down Long Island way. Then breakfasting with Don M. Harris, the cinema chieftain, and much talk of studios, of Quinn Martin, and this and that and so to my tiny corner in the city.

In the afternoon to town hall to hear talented co-star of old print shop days, Russell Wilson, talk of city management, his native Cincinnati. And bravely speaking. So walking with Will Lengel, the editor, and the avenue and for a beaker of orange juice at Hick's.

To the Clay Morgans' dinner aboard the barque, Paris, at dock, and I sat with H. Menken and Thyra Sampter Winslow and a dozen other to crepes suzette. Afterward Purser Roland's office, done like an Agent, and squatted on the floor in duplicate spinning tales of travel and sipping Turkish coffee.

Bermuda cast bread from its pink coral seas with unusual results. When a later outlook faced steamship lines and travel, it was decided to carry on by traveling notables gratis. Guests merely pay for drinks and the tipping. Oddly, profits from liquor sales nearly totaled the expense of the experiment. Added to this every day became a booster for fair Bermuda's coast and Henry Sell's hospitality.

Bill Hamilton well known in banking circles as well as the literary circles, is engaged what is likely the most unusual bachelor party in town. He took over an old stable on the corner of Broadway and 14th street, and by the magic of the interior decorators art converted it into an American dwelling, that might have been planted from the Connecticut countryside.

A ivy-clad hotel is graced with a show of Kuocker and foot-scrappers. Only seven of the golden years include rag carpets, blazing open hearth, leaded windows and a garden silt with cool graveled paths.

That slightly bald fellow, who wags comically through Broadway's bright coast of winter and summer, clad only in thin undershirt, duck shorts and sneakers is Anthony Schaffini. His costume weighs 150 pounds. O. yes, Mr. Schaffini is authoring a health book. Genius mocking conventions.

My casual indifference to crooners is born of petty jealousy. Plus a definite neurosis popping out a sweat when hearing a twang in the human voice. Most crooners seemed so many young and fruitful Casanovas, garlanding marcelled hair with petals, and singing torch tunes to servants. I find one notable exception to such behavior. At least, and thus do I scatter a few hazards for Russ Colombo.

I went to hear Colombo recently in a decidedly arbitrary. I have noted the effect on charming ladies by the Colombos of the world when sitting among them. Yet, I am coupled with a desire to fill the column, off the admission Colombo, an extremely nearly engaging young man. Perhaps all the far glow of spiritual adolescence often seen among young priests. He was mottled with bewilderment over the sensation his personal appearance created. A skilled violinist, the most versatile and by far the handsomest and best-dressed of the pack. Ladies sigh over his slumbering eyes and the bird-like ter in his throat as he moored. I was especially impressed by his effort to hide a whipping nervousness that created a palsied shake. I have such tricky nerves myself. And when put it, do I shake!

Personal nomination for the most graceful smile—that of Cecilia Loftus.

Bugs Baer, after twelve years of public bachelors, has revolted. He is tired of carousing and cabaret, "remindful of a child's diet's fingers." He wants a chance at some pot liquor, turnip greens, corn pone and chutney. And not be forced to let his vittles eat while he stands to deliver expected wise cracks.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, April 11.—Democrats in the house—especially those gentlemen among the leadership and those holding chairmanships of committees—are looking to their salaries and appearance more these days than they have in a long while.

Not that they were careless in the past. In the days before they came to power, now they add the little "fixins" and "trimmings" that before they gave little thought to. Speaker Garner, for example. Back in the days he was merely the Democratic leader of the house, he never took the time nor the pains to see about things like that. Now, he can see the capitol rather frequently wearing a white collar, a concession to sartorial elegance for "Speaker Jack."

Thus far he has failed to show up in the frock coat that gossip has Mrs. Garner told him by when he was elected speaker. Not even the day he was sworn in did he wear a nor has the persistent talk about his being a possible presidential candidate had any effect. The wing collar is as far as he will go.

There's Rainey, the floor leader, and McDuffie, the whip. The former has added to his familiar black, flowing Windsor tie, a varied assortment of shirts. Blue seems to be the favorite, and with his shock of snow-white hair, he presents a striking appearance.

McDuffie carries a stick most of the time now. He, too, one of the most physically commanding men in the house, has a fondness for shirts—preferably in green of a light shade. The greened fight to the sales tax, drawing as it did to the galleries thousands of people each day, seemed to have had an effect on Doughton of North Carolina, an outstanding opponent of such a levy.

His black-gray suit, perfectly tailored, was so in keeping with his general appearance that he looked much like a well-groomed bird.

Of course the Democrats have had a waltz their Beau Brummels. These have changed little in appearance since their accession to power. Sirovich, of New York, foe of dramatic critics, remains perhaps their candidate for the best groomed members of congress. His red boutonniere, a daily fixture of dress and pinned-nez affixed to a black ribbon, adorned blue suits put him almost by himself. For sheer sartorial splendor in the philistine—Guevara and Osias—put all to rout. No one can compete with their elegance—especially Osias.

He Gets the Grapes.

An outstanding man is all very well, but politics is the outrunning man who gets the job.—Dallas News.

"I know nothing of her own state of mind. Somehow, she forgot it."

"Heart of a Wife"

—BY ADELE GARRISON

Edith Fairfax tries to claim Credit for Helping Fin-the Decorations.

"We haven't breath to think," Lillian said promptly. "Harry and Dicky asked us what we thought of the lighting effects they had provided for the party. You've knocked it all out of us with this demonstration."

"It is the loveliest thing I've ever seen," I said.

"Pretty nifty, what?" Dicky admitted. "But old Harry bears off the plums in the pudding. He did that lighting stunt."

"It's only the usual night club stunt," Mr. Underwood said diffidently.

"Plus the soul of Monsieur Underwood," Dicky said affectionately. "Those shadings, that timing—there isn't a tint in the whole thing that won't make every girl look like an angel! We've been trying to get out on Katie, and they made her look like a cross between a Grouse model and the Madonna in blue. So it's a cinch there'll be several masculine hearts shattered tonight."

Including the Orchestra

"I never saw anything so ex-quisite," I repeated, "and I'm glad to find out what has been the matter with Katie. She's gone around with such an air of mystery that I have been afraid she would burst."

"How about her dinner?" Dicky asked with the first hint of cap-tiousness I had heard in his voice since he and Harry began prepara-tions for the party. "Will she have it on time, or will she begin to serve about midnight?"

I smiled triumphantly at him, for I justly was able to refute his implied criticism of my little maid.

"Progressing wonderfully," I said. "I've been able to provide help enough for her, so that she has been able to get everything in good shape. And I've been able to get hold of four clever young colored boys to wait upon the tables."

"Some class to our party, eh, folks?" Dicky said teasingly. "We're going to have an orchestra, too, don't forget."

"I'm not likely to," I said a bit dryly, for only my father and his check book knew what that or-chestra had cost me. With Major Grantland saving me the expense of sending some of my masculine guests to a hotel, as I would have been compelled to do otherwise, with Phil Vertizan's munificence in providing a revue, and with the cleverness of Harry and Dicky bringing our lovely decorations down to a minimum of expense, I had felt not justified but ex-cusable, in splurging a bit upon the orchestra, and had secured a group of colored musicians whose skill in jazz had made them in-much demand among Summer house-ers in Southampton and Easthampton.

"Poor old pocketbook feeling the strain?" Dicky asked teasingly. "Well, we'll try to restore it to its pristine plumpness when this cruel war is over. Madge, dear! But, hush! I hear the sound of chaotic wheels, otherwise motor rumbles. Do you suppose some of your guests have arrived?"

Edith Fairfax Arrives

"Switch off the lights, pronto!" Lillian said, and let's get out of here and lock the doors. "There isn't a single thing more to be done, and we don't want anybody to see it until time for the festi-vities to begin. You have the library and veranda and foyer for reception rooms, and don't need to take anybody into this lovely place until time for dinner to be served."

"That's the plan," I said, running up two or three shades so that air might be admitted to the room and keep the roses from drooping in the low bowls upon the tables. Soon we were in the hall with the doors locked behind us, and a few steps more took us to the side veranda.

"Edith! I knew it!" Lillian said in a disgusted way aside to me. "That woman has the mind of a gossip-ing member of the old-style sewing circle. She can't rest unless she has a finger in every pie. She's landed out here ahead of time, hoping she can find something to find fault with, or to exercise what she calls her efficiency on I hope you pipe the prepositions I'm end-ing my sentences with. That's just the way I feel!"

"Hush! She'll hear you!" I said, divided between annoyance at Edith's untimely arrival and mirth at Lillian's diatribe.

"I hope she does," she answered rebelliously. "But don't worry! I'm ready and we're waiting my hostess smiles and same my hostess. Come on down and let's get the glad hand over!"

Edith Claims Credit

I went with her down the steps to the side of the car. Dicky and Harry were ahead of us but I noticed that Edith continued to let her "cousin" help her out of the car. I greeted her cordially, and then turned to the big, kindly man who had been so good to us on our Southern sojourn in Junior's early childhood.

"It is so good to see you again, Dr. Paige," I said, and I meant it. "It's pretty nice to see you," he replied with his fascinating South-ern drawl, and smiling down at me from his six feet of height. "I was afraid I'd be imposing on you, com-ing in like this on a party when you didn't expect me but Edie said you wouldn't mind."

"She was perfectly right," I said smiling, but had hard work to keep the smile on my face when Edith struck in peremptorily.

"Where are all those wonderful decorations the Dicky-bird and I were planning? I came out early on purpose to look them over."

sharply for a Winton Times. She paid for it, then let it lie across her knee for a moment, her eyes averted from it, a shudder passing through her.

Gar's accident would be in the paper, those details missing from the telephone communication that was bringing her back to Winton. Perhaps she'd open it to read that Gar was dead.

All through the night, lying stiff, aching, on her berth, she had pic-tured the accident, Gar mangled, calling for her in his last con-sciousness. They hadn't told her over the telephone, because they'd thought of the shock — people broke news that way, with half-truths.

She took up the paper with the trembling fingers. The print blurred. It was a moment before she could see even the head-line. Her glance traveled swiftly over the first page. Not there—she turned the sheet. And there she shrank back with a little cry. Marge's face looked at her.

"Miss Margery Crosby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Crosby, who with Mrs. Crosby leaves for New York today to sail next week for an extended stay in Europe, escaped injuries in the automobile crash which may cost the lives of Garfield Frew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Frew, and Paul Som-ersel, well-known actor who has been directing the productions of the Players at the Little Theater on Sutton street."

Kitty did not look for more de-tails. She crushed the paper in her hands and let it fall to the floor. She stared out in the window, her underlip caught in her teeth. Gar wasn't dead—not yet. She'd get to him in time! "Oh, Gar, Gar! Oh, hurry, hurry!"

"Oh, God, let me see him. Let me talk to him!"

She said it aloud. She saw the man in the seat across the aisle look at her curiously, with a little concern.

"Why is the train going so slowly?" she asked him, childishly.

"We're coming into Winton," he told her. "Can I help you?"

She shook her head. She found her hat and jammed it on her head, jerked on her gloves. She ran down the aisle of the car, pushing fellow-travelers aside.

"Your bags, lady—" the porter called to her. She'd forgotten them. She was turning her head, frown-ing, impatient of the smallest delay when a voice called her name. David took her arm.

Her eyes widened with horror. He'd met her to tell her—

CROP STORAGE UP THIS YEAR

Despite Large Carry-Over Chance Is Seen for Farmers To Show Profit.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—On March 1, it was estimated that there were 207,000,000 bushels of wheat in storage on farms in the United States, says H. E. Curry, of the Ohio Farm Bureau research department. On the same date, a year ago, he declared, there were 181,000,000 bushels on farms, and in 1930 there were 129,000,000 bushels.

These estimates, Curry declared, are higher than the 1925-26 average of 125,000,000 bushels.

"The heavy stocks," he continued, "are confined to the winter wheat regions. The hard winter wheat sections report 99,000,000 bushels of wheat on farms as of March 1, 1932, compared with 55,000,000 bushels last year and a five-year average of 33,000,000 bushels.

Stocks of corn on farms on the first of March this year were much larger than last year, but not as large as average. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania are outstanding corn growing states where stocks of corn on farms were markedly larger than the five-year average.

"Even with a probably large crop carry-over this year and in view of the fact that prices for farm products will be low this summer, Ohio farmers should be able to show at least a small profit from their farming operations this year. Thinking farmers are beginning to realize that the immutable law of supply and demand determines the selling prices of commodities and that no permanent farm relief can come from legislative sources. If Ohio farmers are to escape further unsound farm relief measures, which again are beginning to find vigorous political sponsorship, they must consider the farm problem carefully, find a fundamental corrective for the situation and organize in order to make their beliefs effective.

Favors Unit Cost Reduction
"In my opinion," Curry goes on, "one of the fundamental corrections is to reduce unit crop production costs, which are much higher than they should be. Ohio farmers on March 1 reported that they intend to plant nearly the same acreage in crops this year as they did a year ago."

"It is my guess," he concluded, "that the farmer who reduces average this year, but farms intensively the acreage he does cultivate, will, at the end of the year, show a greater return for his effort than the farmer who maintains an average but curtails his fertilizer expenditures or grows inferior seed."

Marion Man Critically Ill; Doctor Advised ZO-RO-LO—Now Completely Recovered

Mr. John A. Cook

443 E. Farming, Marion, Ohio, writes:

"I am fifty-six years of age, and have been greatly afflicted with Rheumatism practically all my life, and for the past nine years it has become more severe, until I was seriously handicapped."

"Five months ago I was taken ill with gall stones and kidney stones, so that I was forced to give up my job and was bed-ridden for nearly three months. I lost much weight and was in such a critical condition that there was little hope of my recovery."

"My doctor advised me to take ZO-RO-LO, and my improvement has been rapid beyond our wildest hopes. I have now taken two bottles. I have gained twenty-five pounds, have passed the actual gall stones, eat everything I desire, and have been greatly relieved of the Rheumatism. I am now able to work and am anxiously looking for employment. I surely think this is a truly great medicine, and I give this testimony for the sake of suffering humanity."

You are privileged to know Mr. Cook personally if you wish and hear the story of his remarkable recovery from his own lips. His case is typical of the thousands of sufferers all over the country who are receiving relief from this marvelous medical discovery.

Remember, Nature intended you to be well and happy — she is struggling constantly to keep you that way. Give her the assistance she needs — get a bottle of ZO-RO-LO today at

FAIRBANKS JR. IN OHIO PICTURE

Doug Fairbanks Jr. does some of his best work in "It's Tough to Be Famous," which will show Wednesday at the Ohio. The Ohio Conservation League is sponsoring the picture. The story is a satire on the hero-worship of the American people. The dialogue, direction and settings are clever. Doug is a young naval officer who saves his ship from sinking after all his men have been sent out through the torpedo tube. He is rescued and his torpedo and heavy appeal to the public heart until his life becomes a nightmare of publicity. Even his marriage to his childhood sweetheart, Mary Brian, is an open book to the public. The people crave to know more about him and under the high pressure methods of his manager, Walter Catlett, who steals several scenes, his life is not his own. He rebels but of no avail until his home is broken up by too much publicity. Another hero takes the public fancy and while he is in the line, Doug takes the opportunity to win back his wife and begin life over again in happiness and oblivion.

"Washington—the Man and the Capitol" is an interesting picture of the high spots in the first president's career, combined with views of the important sights in Washington, D. C. An engaging and newsworthy complete film.

Passing of "Grasshopper" Line Ends Old Ohio Railway Project

By International News Service

LONDON, O., April 11—The "grasshopper" division of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad, formerly owned by Henry Ford, seems headed for the junk pile and with it will go an ambitious transportation project that stirred the state a half-century ago.

With the disappearance of the possibility of the construction of a direct railroad route between Columbus and Cincinnati.

Eighty years ago that seemed possible. Fifty years ago it appeared even probable.

Grasshoppers Increase

But, according to the facetious persons who gave the division its name, the trains have become fewer and fewer, and more and more grasshoppers have inhabited the path of the road in recent years, blasting the ambition.

Although the application of the D. T. & I. to abandon service between Springfield and Ironton has been denied, this section believes the eventual abandonment of the line can not be prevented.

The "grasshopper" division, also called "the streak of rust," extends from Jeffersonville in Fayette county to Port Williams in Clinton county and Sedalia in Madison county.

Many years ago the old Miami Valley & Columbus Co. planned to cross Franklin, Madison, Greene and Warren counties in a direct route from Columbus to Cincinnati. Existing lines detour and touch Washington, C. H., Dayton or Springfield enroute to Cincinnati. Work was actually started in 1877 and continued for three years with bright prospects. It was believed. Suddenly, the entire project collapsed and only the present part of the line was completed.

Evidence Left

"Remains" of the project may be found in the graded right of way that still exists in this county, extending eastward from the village of Sedalia in the direction of Columbus.

Although the public looks upon the "grasshopper" line as being only that portion from Jeffersonville to Port Williams, the 10-mile stretch of steel from Sedalia to Jeffersonville is far more entitled to the name—for it is used only as a freight line and the engine that pulls a cut of freight cars from Jeffersonville in reverse, for no turntable is available in Sedalia.

The Sedalia branch line has a long and successful history, despite the so-called bad luck of the main "grasshopper" line.

Complete records are not now available, but it is estimated by grain dealers and stockmen and by retailers in Sedalia and vicinity that no railroad line of like distance in the world has been used to ship out or bring in so much material or of a greater value.
